

There is discrimination between people who rent out properties and those who occupy them for own purpose.

People who rent out properties can claim the interest paid on loan as tax deduction where as those who occupy them for own purpose can not claim interest paid on home loan as tax deduction.

To end the discrimination Interest paid on owner occupied home loan should be tax deductible

In United States interest paid on owner occupied home loan is tax deductible

Regards ... DP

Dharmapal Belani