

The Treasurer

Please do not make changes to the way imputation credits are treated. This will adversely effect a wide group of people and will impact severely on their ability to be self sufficient. The long term effect will have more people relying on government assistance.

Those who currently are able to support themselves will now be relying on the Government for some form of financial assistance. Is this what the Government wants?

This smacks of other knee jerk reactions which have put the country into defeceit from which it will take a generation to recover.

Everyone would all like a quick fix but this measure will certainly bring hardship to people where there was once certainty and independence.

Lee Boyle

[removed for privacy reasons]