

Dear Sir/Madam,

I am expressing my disappointment in the current Australian Government's intention to take away our dividend-imputation system. This will cause problems and hardship to Companies as well as the Investor in shares.

As a retired worker and now shareholder, our income will be reduced and probably I will fall into the bracket of becoming a pensioner. I don't want this and neither does the Government.

My husband and I have paid plenty of money in taxes over the years and managed to save for our retirement and now you want to take again. Not fair.

Please do not do it.

Lilian Huth
