

I am greatly concerned that the government is considering abolishing dividend imputation.

I am a self funded retiree and depend on dividends together with the imputation component for my income. It would be manifestly unfair to go back to the old double taxation set-up. Also, in these times of financial turmoil it would be unwise to start altering the tax system in such a radical manner.

Geoff Nickols