

My wife and I live on our Self Managed Super Fund. I have worked all my life until retiring in [removed for privacy reasons]. During that time we have been self supporting and never on any form of benefits. We have faithfully paid all our due taxes. Still in retirement we are self reliant. We have read reports that there is consideration being given to reviewing the current dividend imputation scheme. This would greatly affect our income at a time when our SMSF value is already dramatically reduced. I believe that there are many like us who would be adversely affected by such a change. Please don't change this system!
