

I am very concerned about the suggestion that the dividend imputation system may be removed or altered as part of the Taxation Review.

As a self-funded retiree and a modest investor in the share market, I am proud to support Australian industry and mining, but I am doubtful that this would be worth my while without the assistance of current franking credits.

I can't understand the logic of removing an arrangement that was hailed as a major reform just a few short years ago.

Yours faithfully

Claudia Thame
[removed for privacy reasons]