

The abolition of dividend imputation would sorely affect those retirees who have planned their retirement to maximize income and be self funded. Many retirees, with the abolition of dividend imputation, would become pensioners, or need a big increase in pension to survive.

Though a Labor government has many good ideas and ideals, such a change in taxation policy would prove the traditional thought that Labor is very poor in its fiscal policies.

Yours faithfully,
Mary J. Tidey