

The Australian government needs to make a stand on tax evasion and tax inequality:

When wealthy Australians have the ability to move their funds off-shore to avoid tax, this is adding to the burden on the lower income groups.

You must prevent Australians from using such means to avoid their responsibilities.

You are discussing a "luxury vehicle tax" - why not extend that to include all "luxury" items that only the very wealthy can afford?

And why not tax items based on their harm to the environment? Make the least polluting vehicles (etc) the least taxed....

At a time when there is so much that needs to be done in terms of environment, education, health etc, why are we discussing reduction of income tax for both corporate and individuals??

Tax needs to be paid by those who can afford it for the benefit of all society - and those in a lower income stream should not be shouldering any tax burden until they have achieved an acceptable lifestyle that provides adequately for their wellbeing and that of their families.

Finally, the Australian Government must support the implementation of the CTDL - it is wrong for this trading to be allowed to just continue making money for the world's richest, with no benefit to society.
