

To the review Panel. we understand you!

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

I am a self funded retiree aged 86,
I am not required to lodge a tax return as I earned a little over $20,000.
00 for the year 2007-2008. I submit a plea to the review panel and the Prime Minister Mr K Rudd that all taxpayers of eighty years and older be excused from having to lodge a tax return.
I know the number of retirees is growing
by the years and have no argument against those who still work (in fact I applaud them) after eighty and there is help available I still think it is a daunting task and can be very depressing, missing questions, not entering items and having to do it all over again, is, as I said, very depressing.

If I happened to inherit a large money yielding property or a million dollars would I have to return to the tax payers ranks?

On another note, Capital Gains Tax!

we understand you!

I think that owners of one property for twenty five years or more who decide to sell should receive some alleviation on the tax payable. I have heard that it is 25% which I regard as exorbitant and should be altered.

May you all be in good health and the review goes well.
