

For too long corporate Australia has been acting to avoid its true tax responsibilities. This needs to be reversed by the raising of corporate taxes. Motor vehicle taxes should be reviewed so that the true environmental impacts of private motor vehicle use are recognised. Subsidies to truck transport which have a negative impact on rail transport (and the environment) should be removed.

The use of tax havens by wealthy Australians should be discouraged..

Tony Moody