

Allowing salary sacrificing of LSL entitlements as contributions to super would enable employees to increase their contributions without impacting on take home pay.

Rather than getting a LSL payment based on current salary the contributions would have the potential to earn greater returns when the market eventually recovers.

The suggestion would also move the funds from the control of the employer to that of the super fund resulting in better protection for the funds,

regards

Jeff Chapman